Local Real Estate Manager
Earns Industry Professional Designation

Sterling, VA January 31, 2016 – Pattie Norton Gunter, Portfolio Manager with CGR Commercial Management, LLC, headquartered in Sterling, has joined the skilled group of community association managers who have earned the Association Management Specialist (AMS) designation from the Community Associations Institute (CAI). Gunter is one of more than 3,990 managers nationwide who have earned this level of professional recognition in the community association field.

With more than four years of property management experience, Pattie Norton Gunter joined CGR Commercial Management, LLC back in 2011. Pattie passed the CMCA certification exam in February 2013, demonstrating competence, professional development, and adhering to standards of professional ethical conduct to becoming a Certified Manager of Community Associations. In June 2014, Pattie was promoted from Assistant Property Manager to Property Manager and in August 2015, Pattie was promoted to Portfolio Manager. With over twenty five years of business experience in management and customer service, Gunter directs and supervises the Property Management activities for over ten commercial condominium associations. Clients rely on her professional integrity, excellent communication skills, and property management expertise. Gunter's ability to resolve complex issues and unforeseen obstacles, quickly and efficiently, is one reason that owners and tenants call her first.

CGR Commercial Management, LLC was established in 2005 with just over ten clients. Now, with over thirty clients, this unique management company specializes in managing commercial condominium associations, commercial park associations, and commercial income-producing properties in Northern Virginia. Recognizing the need for high quality property management services with prompt and reliable customer service, as well as creative problem solving know how, CGR Commercial Management continues to take every opportunity to demonstrate every day to owners, tenants, and potential clients alike, that "Our business is minding your property management needs today and for tomorrow."

To earn the AMS designation, managers must have at least two years of experience in community association management and complete advanced course work. In addition, they must have already earned the basic industry certification for managers – the Certified Manager of Community Associations credential.

Professional managers provide administrative, operational and managerial counsel to community association boards. They typically are responsible for managing budgets and contractors, directing association personnel, and overseeing compliance with association covenants and restrictions.

CAI is a national organization dedicated to fostering vibrant, responsive, competent community associations. Some 50 million Americans live in the nations' estimated 250,000 association-governed communities.

CAI and its more than 50 state, regional, and local chapters work on behalf of the professionals and volunteers engaged in the management and governance of homeowner and condominium associations, cooperatives, and other planned communities. CAI's more than 32,500 members include community association volunteer leaders, managers, management companies, and businesses that provide products and services to these communities.
